

The Display Namespace

The namespace Display lists all of the displays with their properties and their open and close methods.

The namespace Layout lists all of the layouts with their properties and their open and close methods.

The namespace Client contains the properties of the environment on each connected client computer or mobile device.

See "Namespaces" for the complete programming reference on runtime objects.